

The Native American Political Leadership Program

The George Washington University's Semester In Washington - Washington's most respected political leadership program - is extending it's AT&T Native American Political Leadership Program (NAPLP) to the summer 2010 semester

FULL SCHOLARSHIPS

In June 2010, a select group of qualified Native American, Alaska Native and Native Hawaiian students will receive individual scholarships to cover tuition, fees, housing, airfare and other expenses. As a participant in NAPLP you will have the opportunity to:

- Spend a semester in the nation's capital while taking classes at GW
- Participate in hands-on internships
- Interact with political leaders and policy makers
- Receive academic credit for classroom study
- Study issues of importance to your communities

You will learn key elements of political campaigns and governance such as:

- Message development
- Voter targeting
- Media production
- Direct Mail
- Fundraising
- Lobbying
- Grassroots Advocacy

FULL SCHOLARSHIPS

HOW TO APPLY:

Interested students who are enrolled members of a Native community or possess proof of ancestry may apply online, download our application or mail the copies attached to SIW Admissions, The George Washington University, 1922 F street, NW, Room 401-A, Washington, DC 20052.

SIW requires the following application pieces:

- NAPLP Admissions application: - available here: www.naplp.gwu.edu
- One letter of recommendation
- Official or unofficial transcripts of all college academic work
- A current resume
- Indication of tribal enrollment and/or Native American (American Indian, Alaska Native, Native Hawaiian) ancestry

CONTACT US:

Call us at 202.994.8908 or toll-free at 1.800.367.4776. Email us at NAPLP@gwu.edu.

Application DEADLINE for summer 2010 is March 15th, 2010

www.naplp.gwu.edu